Errors I faced

1. To be honest, I didn't face any major error other than modifying the hosts file on the receiver to allow it to connect to the domain of the server being hosted on the master. It was great fun to see the fishes move from one display to another
2. While, not an error it was fun to search by myself the internet for any existing aquarium installations on a liquid galaxy setup since no link other than a YouTube video was provided. It allowed me to learn on my own rather than simply following instructions
